Trailer Camp Moves Out To New Location

New Turnpike Forces Trailer Folk to Leave

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP, Aug. 10—Highway Trailer Camp on the grounds of the Becker Farms, for two years a familiar landmark to passersby at Street Road and the Lincoln Highway, has been evacuated to make way for the new Turnpike extension which will cross the Lincoln Highway at this point.

After a frantic two weeks of uprooting the trailers and finding new sites for them, carried out under the direction of the camp owner, M. F. Terry, all but one of the trailers were off the grounds by the deadline of Saturday night.

Most surprised of all parties concerned were the owners of one trailer left behind, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller. They left recently for a vacation, locking up their trailer as one of a busy and well-peopled camp of twenty families, and returned late Saturday night to find the whole area abandoned and their own trailer left standing alone. Yesterday they too moved.

The new location for the campers is at Terry Trailer Camp, on Bristol rd. in Newportville, Bensalem Township, also owned by M. F. Terry.

PWs Report Threats

FREEDOM VILLAGE — American soldiers, many of them non-commissioned officers, told today of strenuous Communist efforts to swing captives into line with the Reds by physical intimidation and threats. And many of the men who were returned by the Reds today made it plain that a large number, probably a majority, of the American captives resisted the Red indoctrination efforts bitterly and unyieldingly.

Food Arrives

BERLIN — West Berlin spokesmen announced today that 70 per cent of the hungry Germans in East Berlin and the area bordering the city have received western food parcels. The number of food packages handed out to Soviet Zone residents crept toward the two million mark although distribution was slowed during the weekend by a new Communist crackdown on rail travel to Berlin.

Authority Leader Backs Proposal To Use Delaware

In answer to an increasingly vocal faction of Levittowners who look askance at the proposed use of Delaware River water for drinking and household purposes, C. Donald Moyer, chairman of the Lower Bucks County Joint Municipal Authority, declared last night that "an unlimited supply" of Delaware water must be ready for use before too long.

Levittowners are aware that the Delaware River Navigation Commission several weeks ago approved the laying of a pipeline to carry river water to Levittown. The only holdup is a survey which must be conducted to determine the ability of the line to overcome the hazards of a frozen river in the winter.

Proposal Hit

Joseph Hitov, of the Greenwood section of Levittown, and a member of the board of directors of the Levittown Civic Association, speaking for the dissidents, has continually criticized the proposed use of river water.

He said he moved to Levittown to escape the poor quality of Delaware river water used there and that he was "satisfied with well water" now being used in Levittown.

Moyer assured the group that filtered water from the upper Delaware in this area was "excellent" and was not to be compared with Philadelphia water.

In any case, he said, water shortages in this area would constitute one of the greatest obstacles to the incursion of new industries here.

Set Aside

He explained that Levitt & Sons had set aside 250 acres for industrial use.

"Factories are needed to keep taxes on the home owner down," he said.

Moyer agreed that there had been "no disappointment in the supply of water in the wells." He pointed out that source of supply could be continued.

It was estimated the five wells supply more than 1,000,000 gallons of water a day and have a final capacity double that amount.

Moyer said he expected the filter plant near Levittown to be completed in about a year and a half.

The civic association appointed a committee to further investigate the water supply situation and report back to the group at its next meeting.

The group will hold its first fall meeting Sept. 14.

SESSION TONIGHT

NEWPORTVILLE, Aug. 10 — The Ladies' Auxiliary of Newport Fire Co. No. 1, Bensalem Twp. will hold a meeting this evening at eight in the fire station.

Council Street Action Scheduled; New Faces to Appear at Meeting

Borough Council is expected to take action tonight to improve streets and alleys in the borough, following the opening of bids by the Council streets and highway committee. Committee Chairman William H. Pearson said he will submit satisfactory bids to Council for approval.

Other subjects expected to be considered by the councilmen are the borough water shortage and the proposal of the Mill Street Businessmen's Association to expedite traffic from out-of-town to the municipal parking lot, with a new road connecting the lot with Old Route 13.

New Faces

Two new faces in council belong to members inducted last month, Gordon S. Gilbert, of 590 Bath street, Third Ward; and John S. Gallagher, 701 Pine street, Fourth Ward.

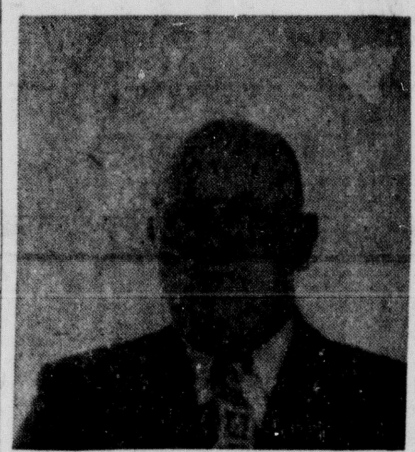

Mr. Gilbert, succeeding the late Thomas Goslin, is 45 and is receiving department foreman for Rohm and Haas Co., where he has been employed for 28 years. He attended Bristol High School, and is married, with a son serving in the Navy.

Mr. Gallagher is filling the unexpired term of John Capriotti. Also associated with Rohm and Haas, he is payroll accounting supervisor, and has been employed there for 17 years. Forty years old, he is married and has two children. He is a graduate of Bristol High School and Rider College.

"It should be a very interesting session of Council," Burgess I. Johnston Hetherington, Sr., said today. "Many matters pertinent to the operation of the borough will be discussed."

The burgess invited all Bristol residents to attend the session, with a special invitation to candidates for borough office in the November

Rep. King Lauded By Farm Official Who Raps 'Jaunt'

High tribute to Rep. Carl C. King of the Bucks-Lehigh district was paid by C. M. Wilson, secretary of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, in a public announcement today.

Wilson, whose association's headquarters are located at Lemoyne, said: "Pennsylvania is fortunate in having a member of the House Agricultural Committee who understands (the broad farm picture) but not many other states can say the same thing. Congressman King has been a close observer of our policies and also of the Grange policies. Congressman King is a keen student of farmer opinion and he is one of the best informed men in Washington when it comes to Agriculture."

However, Wilson took issue with the House Agricultural Committee's current jaunt around the country. "If members (of the House Agricultural Committee) really want to know what farmers think about things, they ought first to take a look at what farmers have already said and pay a little closer attention to what they are doing currently," he asserted. Wilson rapped the one-day hearings being held in scattered regions of the country.

The association secretary said a great majority of the nation's farmers had spoken out for very substantial reductions in U. S. hand-outs to farmers, stating the House Agricultural Committee had insisted however on giving farmers more than they wanted to boost the figure to 190 million dollars, when farmers wanted them reduced to at least 140 million.

Doll Doctor's Prized Item is Big Toy House

A favorite with Bristol children is Miss Annie M. Valentine, Bristol's only doll doctor. She has been repairing dolls in her Radcliffe st. home for 21 years.

Her living room is full of dolls and doll parts. One of her most prized possessions, a 75-year old doll house, is in the same room. The doll house is three stories high and has 12 rooms. Miss Valentine bought it 10 years ago from four Philadelphia women. It was hand-carved for them when they were children, by two of their uncles. Each of the 14 doors in the house is paneled. There is a hand carved stairway that extends from the main floor to the third and a bay window at the entrance. The dining room has a plate rail for displaying tiny plates. The house is completely wired. Miss Valentine plans to furnish it and display it for the public this fall.

A little gray-haired woman of 67, Miss Valentine started repairing dolls after the death of her father, Samuel T. Valentine. Mr. Valentine, a house painter, repaired dolls in his spare time. His

THIS MIGHTY MIDGET

Does a Better Job at Less Cost

Two questions are asked of every new development for the telephone business, and the answer to each must be Yes before it is put to general use:

1. Will it improve the quality of telephone service?
2. Will it help keep costs under control?

The mighty midget is one of the new developments that have passed this test. It's called a Transistor . . . it's as tiny as it looks . . . and it does the work of a vacuum tube, using one millionth of the power. Given less "juice" than is needed to make a flashlight bulb glow, it will amplify electric impulses a hundred thousand times.

The Transistor, in short, does a better job at less cost than vacuum tubes many times its size.

Such improvements as the Transistor come from a never-ending search for ways and means of improving telephone service while keeping costs under control. Scientists make such things possible, but telephone men and women—and you who use telephone service—point the way to their need.

200 Hunt Killers

ADAIRSVILLE, GA. — Two convicts who killed a U. S. deputy marshal and were believed to be holding a second deputy as a hostage were hunted today by one of the biggest posses in Georgia history. More than 200 law enforcement officers including FBI agents and state troopers are combing a 25-mile area near Adairsville for the killers.

Ill PWs Fly

TOKYO—Seventeen ill Americans freed by the Communists in Korea left Tokyo by air today for the United States in the first airlift home of those exchanged in Operation Big Switch. The C-54 transport carrying the GIs left Tokyo's Haneda Airport without ceremony. The plane will stop at Midway Island on its trans-Pacific flight and then at Hawaii.

Red Bomb 'Likely'

PROSPECT, Conn. — The chairman of the joint security committee on atomic energy, Rep. James T. Patterson (R., Conn.), says it is quite likely that Russia has developed the H-bomb. Patterson told a GOP family outing that "we should now assume that Russia has developed the H-bomb and is abreast of us in all fissionable energy."

'Still at Odds'

WASHINGTON — Sen. James Duff told a television interview that any Communist violation of the Korean truce would trigger World War III. He defended the truce on the grounds that any honorable action that stops bloodshed is a "good thing." He refused to say whether he would seek the GOP gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania. He admitted he is still at odds with Gov. John S. Fine.

Cancer Denied

BALTIMORE — A report that President Quirino of the Philippines has cancer was flatly denied and labelled "ridiculous" today by Quirino's personal physician. He said the first tests made at Johns Hopkins Hospital showed that the President is not a victim of cancer.

THIS MIGHTY MIDGET

Does a Better Job at Less Cost

Two questions are asked of every new development for the telephone business, and the answer to each must be Yes before it is put to general use:

1. Will it improve the quality of telephone service?

2. Will it help keep costs under control?

The mighty midget is one of the new developments that have passed this test. It's called a Transistor... it's as tiny as it looks... and it does the work of a vacuum tube, using one millionth of the power. Given less "juice" than is needed to make a flashlight bulb glow, it will amplify electric impulses a hundred thousand times.

The Transistor, in short, does a better job at less cost than vacuum tubes many times its size.

Such improvements as the Transistor come from a never-ending search for ways and means of improving telephone service while keeping costs under control. Scientists make such things possible, but telephone men and women—and you who use telephone service—point the way to their need.

Historian Tells Of Importation Of Song, Game

HARRISBURG, July 31—Henry W. Shoemaker, President of the Pennsylvania Folklore Society, State Museum, today said probably the first attempt to stock Pennsylvania with foreign game were with ringneck pheasants, as long ago as 1790, when Benjamin Franklin's son-in-law, Richard Bache, brought from England 100 "Brace" (pairs) of ringnecks to stock his lands on the Pennsylvania and New Jersey sides of the Delaware river.

"They had completely disappeared when late Dr. J. H. Kalbfus, the well-known Pennsylvania game board secretary, planted a few ringnecks every year between 1892 and 1895," Shoemaker said. "A sportsman liberated a hundred ringnecks on his estate in Clinton County, in 1907 and 1908, which increased fabulously after the 1908 planting in the fields, the 1907 planting in the woods resulted in the complete disappearance of the birds. In 1908 he released 100 Hungarian partridges in an orchard, which flew swiftly westward, and were never seen again.

"Pennsylvania game officials resumed releasing ringnecks annually from 1915 to 1925, after which time they became firmly established as the chief Pennsylvania game bird, during the period there were 40,000 birds legally released.

"In 1896, the Czar of Bulgaria, father of King Boris III, who perished in the Red rebellion in 1939, saw an advertisement of wild turkey eggs for sale in Pennsylvania near Lewistown, Mifflin County, and through the Royal Bulgarian legation at Washington, D. C., arranged for six dozen eggs to be sent to him; these he had hatched under bare neck hens, said to have wild turkey blood, and released on his shooting estate near Plovdiv. These birds developed well, and the gobblers frequently weighed 40 pounds, twice the average weight of the wild gobblers in Pennsylvania.

"King Boris always staged a 'Pennsylvania wild turkey shoot' around the time of the American Thanksgiving, and would send the biggest tom he shot to the American minister.

"When quails became scarce in Pennsylvania, Dr. Kalbfus secured 47,000 Mexican and southern quails for Pennsylvania. A few mated and bred with the native bobwhites, but the rest, after a few seasons, completely disappeared. The few which are here seem to be a throwback to the old local stock.

"When wild pigeons grew scarce, and trap shooters objected to shots at the slower moving tame pigeons, crates of hundreds of blue rocks, or European wild pigeons were shipped from abroad to American sportsmen. These were good steady birds, and had furnished sport at Monte Carlo, Ostend and Islington for a hundred years. They were highly thought of at the American matches, but the cost was too great and gradually the better types of American tame pigeons, such as homers replaced them.

"The blue rocks which escaped the trap shooters took up their headquarters in the public squares of large American cities, and in places have become nuisances and are said to be the ancestors of the trimly built blue pigeons which frequent Capitol Hill, in Harrisburg, in such great numbers.

"Prior to the Civil War the parks in Philadelphia were stocked with English sparrows and they thrived and spread into all parts of Pennsylvania, and after nearly a century are maintaining themselves well. Later there were small importations of English starlings in Philadelphia, and they had reached half way across the state by 1900, and are still flourishing and extending their range, often driving out and taking over houses built for the purple Martins.

"Efforts at introducing nightingales, skylarks, English robin red breasts and German bullfinches proved unsuccessful, as with other rare European songsters. Every now and then some belated night wanderer claims to have heard the divine song of the nightingale, in some lonely wooded spot, and will tell how his grandfather stated these birds had been let out in that locality."

A Good Rule for All Parents: Be Consistent With Children

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

THE theory that how strict parents are is less important than how consistent they are, is a common sense one.

The tendency of parents to be inconsistent is what makes it hard for a baby to conform to some necessary routines and to learn the meaning of "No." This is also true of an older child. He can't learn to adapt himself to desirable family regulations for protecting the rights of other members and sharing in home chores and responsibilities.

For instance, the mother wishing to have her youngster, two, sleep regularly in his own crib may, on being half-awakened by his crying in the night, pull him into bed with her, when he easily is comforted. There he may stay all night.

Several days later, with an erupting tooth or a cold or tummy ache, he may be restless during the night, and the mother takes him into bed with her again.

Fearing that she may have begun a nuisance, this mother may refuse to let him stay with her next time he cries out in the night. She even may have the fortitude to let him cry himself back to sleep. But on a later night, she may succumb again.

Over a period of months the contest may continue—the mother giving in sometimes, holding out sometimes. The chances are pretty great that the youngster will gradually win. Indeed, he may soon demand that he always stay with his mother. Young mothers should know that a little child has even more regard for precedent than the judge of a court, and that what she does to please him once, he is inclined to expect her to keep on doing.

Injuries Slight

noon at 3:20 at VanAken's corner, Old Lincoln Highway, near here. Damages to the vehicles were reported to be $1365. No injuries were reported.

Five vehicles were reported as travelling east on Old Lincoln Highway. According to police, a car operated by Henry Miles Jr., 26, Long Beach, N. Y. had stopped, waiting to pass a vehicle, stopped partially off the roadway. Four other cars travelling to the rear of the Miles machine collided with the rear of the car in front of them. The Miles machine was damaged approximately $15 according to report.

Operators Listed

The operators of the vehicles were: Rodney Terwilger, 50, Manococh, N. Y., damaged $150; George Bush, Jr., 23, aPsaic, N. J., $200 damages; Edward Holder, 22, Elizabeth, N. J., $500 damages; Bernard Lewis, 33, Phila., $500 damages.

All five drivers were arrested on charges of reckless driving, pending a hearing today.

Patrolmen Gino Mittozzi, Gilbert Custer and Chief of Police, Franklin Kirby, Falls Township, investigated.

Peter Iannucci, of 924 Pond st., Bristol, had half-completed a right-hand turn into Washington street last night at 10:10 p. m., when he realized he was backing traffic on a one-way street and tried to back out. He struck a car driven by Charles Whyano, 2853 S. Sheridan street, Philadelphia.

Whyano sustained minor damage to the front fender and grill of his car. Iannucci's car had a damaged taillight.

No one was injured. Officers Peter Caro and William Shire investigated the accident.

Tears Down Fence

A car operated by Frank Roberts, RD 2, Langhorne, ran off the highway at Bristol road and Spruce avenue, Oakford, Saturday night at 11:45 and tore down a fence on the property of the Hungarian Club. Police said a wet road contributed to the mishap. There was no damage to Robert's car.

Five minutes later, a car driven by Joseph Rietor, 22, 1948 Long shore avenue, Philadelphia, encountered heavy traffic coming out the Lincoln Drive-In Theater. A car operated by James Debow, 2340 Oxford street, Philadelphia, ran into the rear of Rietor's vehicle.

Debow was arrested for operating his vehicle too fast for road conditions and for driving without an operator's license.

Police estimated combined damages at $250.

Tried to Pass

Early Saturday morning James

Many a toddler from two to five is sometimes spanked for running into the street, and his parents wonder why the spanking didn't work. But for the one time that he was spanked as he stepped off the curb unprotected, he probably did this twenty, thirty or fifty times when he wasn't. Inconsistent spanking is not only futile, but cruel and harmful.

"Think of the little child who is shown off for a particular act or utterance, and then suddenly rebuked or punished later for this same deed or expression. Or the youngster who's often been punished by his parents for something he does, but repeats the same thing two hours later right in the sight and hearing of this parent without even a rebuke. Or of the child given permission to do today what he is sternly forbidden to do tomorrow.

Neglects His Pet

A boy, ten, receives a rabbit for a pet on the promise he will faithfully care for it. He does so for three days. At the rabbit's feeding time on the fourth day, the boy says he's tired and the father feeds it. Soon thereafter the boy neglects this rabbit more and more often till his father gets after him. After a few more days, the lad grows dilatory again, when his father feeds the rabbit and continues to do so for several days more, after which the lad is punished for neglect. By and by this lad takes no responsibility at all for his rabbit.

It's wonderful when a child, two or fifteen, can count on each parent to be consistent, knowing beforehand how this parent will respond to anything the child does or says, and that he can always count on the promises of both his parents.

W. Bacham, 31, 5109 Green street, Philadelphia, was proceeding on Route 13 west of Route 413 when a car driven by Willie L. Brown, 37, of 1938 N. 13th street, Philadelphia, tried to pass.

At the same time a vehicle operated by William H. Clinkscale, 27, of 1820 Bucknell street, Philadelphia, going west on Route 13 came head on in the center lane causing Brown's car to ram into the rear of Bacham's auto. Brown's and Clinkscale's cars sideswiped each other.

Brown's car was virtually demolished according to police. Its drive shaft and rear axle were knocked off their anchoring points. Clinkscale's vehicle was damaged moderately. Officer Neil Hepler investigated.

Car Upsets

The wheel of a car being towed by a tow-truck broke yesterday afternoon at 3:30 causing it to upset on its right side. It carried the tow truck along with it.

Donald J. Stille, 24, of 649 N. 15th street, Philadelphia, had driven his tow truck to Bristol to bring back the car, involved in a recent accident, for repairs.

Police said Stille was not injured. His tow truck was damaged to the extent of $50.

At about the same time yesterday afternoon three cars were involved in a collision on Route 413 in the neighborhood of Rockdale Village.

A vehicle operated by Edwin Cyranecpi, 27, 1900 N. 4th street, Philadelphia, stopped to make a turn while cars driven by Clarence Reach, 19, Church street, Glassboro, N. J., and Vincent Scheidler, 19, 4425 Consist lane, Philadelphia, failed to stop or slow down to permit the turn. All cars collided. Officer Robert Lawrence investigated.

Pedestrian Deaths Rise in County

A decrease of 32 in the number of motor vehicle traffic fatalities in Pennsylvania has been reported by the Bureau of Highway Safety. Bucks county, though, reported that there were seven more pedestrians killed here during June of 1952. Eighteen persons were killed in traffic deaths compared to nineteen for a year ago.

The 86 deaths during the month of June was the lowest number experienced in this state for any one month during the past eight years. Chester county led the 29 counties recording decreases during June, while Dauphin, Lebanon, Philadelphia, and Westmoreland counties headed the 18 counties registering increases.

Deaths on the Pennsylvania turnpike were up five over the three reported during June 1952.

Sergeant Fails

Bergmann replied, "that's a job for the Council."

Bergmann would not comment on the actual questions given Parto, but said that the test was "devised by the Commission, and was given both in oral and written form."

"The Civil Service Commission held a meeting before Mr. Parto was given the test," Bergmann said. "We made rules that gave due consideration to his past service as a sergeant on the police force."

Most of the "consideration," the secretary said, applied to a written test Parto took, but it was also applied in the oral test. "In spite of this," Bergmann said, "he did not meet the minimum qualifications for chief of police. After the test was over, Mr. Parto told the commission that it was a fair test. He said he felt nervous and could not sleep."

Would Not Remain

Bergmann said that Parto would not remain a sergeant on the force "because there was no vacancy created by the Council for that job."

The Commission was established last April in conjunction with a law which requires the setting up of such boards to handle police matters in any borough with three or more men on the force, according to Bergmann.

He said that all vacancies on the force would be filled through the Commission, and that present members of the force would take competitive examinations for their jobs August 14.

"Raw Deal"

Reached for comment at his home, Sgt. Parto said that he was given a "raw deal" on the examination.

"I was supposed to have gotten points for my tenure as sergeant on the force, and I never got them," Parto said. "And I never received consideration for the fact that I passed the oral test. They give you a big buildup, and then let you down. I thought I was the new police chief, but I guess I'm not after all."

The day after the examination, the Commission, in a letter to Police Committee Chairman, Councilman John Lucisano, announced that "with all consideration of which the applicant is entitled by rules adopted by the Civil Service Commission, for this non-competitive examination," Parto did not receive a passing grade.

The letter was read to Council in a special meeting Wednesday night. Parto confirmed the fact that he had requested an appeal hearing, and said that he thought it "no more than right" that the Commission "or someone" should have released the news at the time it happened.

"I would have released it right away," he said. "I can't see any reason for them holding back."

Two Commissioners To Attend Meeting

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 10—Joseph W. Hollowell, chairman of the Board of Commissioners and Commissioner Thomas R. Lewis, left yesterday to attend the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners, which begins a three-day session today in Pittsburgh. It was announced this morning by Chief Clerk Ernest H. Harvey.

Main speaker of the opening session will be Dr. Richard Gerstl, state director of Civil Defense, who will report on the recent atomic tests in Nevada.

I am convinced that with peace we will stand on the threshold of one of the great forward movements in history. — Ernest T. Weir, chairman, National Steel Corp.

Elderly Man Hurt; Son Held in Jail

LOWER SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 10 — A 47-year-old son, William L. Dace, was committed to Bucks County Prison Saturday to await a hearing on charges by neighbors that he cause a disturbance resulting in injuries to his father, William H. Dace, 81.

The elder Dace, of Belmont and Dauphin road, Feasterville, was taken to Abington Hospital by the Trevoze Heights Rescue Squad, called on for assistance by Lower Southampton Police Chief Edward Wunch.

Dace was treated for shock and leg bruises, hospital attendants said resulted from kicks.

Chief Wunch said neighbors claim Saturday's disturbance was only one of a series. He said the younger Dace was under the influence of liquor when he was arrested.

Wunch said he is making a complete investigation of the incident and that the younger Dace will be given a further hearing when he has completed his investigation.

move in this area as a result. They said they believed the thieves had also taken the official stamp from the Lawrenceville, N. J. post office.

The first stolen order, for $100, showed up and was cashed at the Morrisville post office only minutes before postal employees there were alerted about the Yardville money order thefts.

Warnings were broadcast throughout the Delaware Valley area, particularly to merchants in Philadelphia, where Chief Inspector Albert E. DuBois, of the criminal investigation division, instructed all police captains to be on the lookout for attempts to cash the stolen orders.

DuBois said the stolen order blanks carried serial numbers from 3-8603 2351 to 3-8603 2460.

Morrisville police said the cashed money order was presented by a man in his early 30s about 5 feet 9 inches tall with a light complexion.

A Good Rule for All Parents: Be Consistent With Children

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

THE theory that how strict parents are is less important than how consistent they are, is a common sense one.

The tendency of parents to be inconsistent is what makes it hard for a baby to conform to some necessary routines and to learn the meaning of "No." This is also true of an older child. He can't learn to adapt himself to desirable family regulations for protecting the rights of other members and sharing in home chores and responsibilities.

For instance, the mother wishing to have her youngster, two, sleep regularly in his own crib may, on being half-awakened by his crying in the night, pull him into bed with her, when he easily is comforted. There he may stay all night.

Several days later, with an erupting tooth or a cold or tummy ache, he may be restless during the night, and the mother takes him into bed with her again. Fearing that she may have begun a nuisance, this mother may refuse to let him stay with her next time he cries out in the night. She even may have the fortitude to let him cry himself back to sleep. But on a later night, she may succumb again.

Over a period of months the contest may continue — the mother giving in sometimes, holding out sometimes. The chances are pretty great that the youngster will gradually win. Indeed, he may soon demand that he always stay with his mother. Young mothers should know that a little child has even more regard for precedent than the judge of a court, and that what she does to please him once, he is inclined to expect her to keep on doing.

(Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Many a toddler from two to five is sometimes spanked for running into the street, and his parents wonder why the spanking didn't work. But for the one time that he was spanked as he stepped off the curb unprotected, he probably did this twenty, thirty or fifty times when he wasn't. Inconsistent spanking is not only futile, but cruel and harmful.

"Think of the little child who is shown off for a particular act or utterance, and then suddenly rebuked or punished later for this same deed or expression. Or the youngster who's often been punished by his parents for something he does, but repeats the same thing two hours later right in the sight and hearing of this parent without even a rebuke. Or of the child given permission to do to-day what he is sternly forbidden to do tomorrow.

Neglects His Pet
A boy, ten, receives a rabbit for a pet on the promise he will faithfully care for it. He does so for three days. At the rabbit's feeding time on the fourth day, the boy says he's tired and the father feeds it. Soon thereafter the boy neglects his rabbit more and more often till his father gets after him. After a few more days, the lad grows dilatory again, when his father feeds the rabbit and continues to do so for several days more, after which the lad is punished for neglect. By and by this lad takes no responsibility at all for his rabbit. It's wonderful when a child, two or fifteen, can count on each parent to be consistent, knowing beforehand how this parent will respond to anything the child does or says, and that he can always count on the promises of both his parents.

Injuries Slight

noon at 3:20 at VanAken's corner, Old Lincoln Highway, near here. Damages to the vehicles were reported to be $1365. No injuries were reported.

Five vehicles were reported as travelling east on Old Lincoln Highway. According to police, a car operated by Henry Miles Jr., 26, Long Beach, N. Y. had stopped, waiting to pass a vehicle, stopped partially off the roadway. Four other cars travelling to the rear of the Miles machine collided with the rear of the car in front of them. The Miles machine was damaged approximately $15 according to report.

Operators Listed
The operators of the vehicles were: Rodney Terwilliger, 50, Manpanoch, N. Y., damaged $150; George Bush, Jr., 23, aPescic, N. J., $200 damages; Edward Holder, 22, Elizabeth, N. J., $500 damages; Bernard Lewis, 33, Phila., $500 damages.

All five drivers were arrested on charges of reckless driving, pending a hearing today.

Patrolmen Gino Mittozzi, Gilbert Custer and Chief of Police, Franklin Kirby, Falls Township, investigated.

Peter Iannucci, of 924 Pond st., Bristol, had half-completed a right-hand turn into Washington street last night at 10:10 p. m., when he realized he was backing traffic on a one-way street and tried to back out. He struck a car driven by Charles Whyano, 2853 S. Sheridan street, Philadelphia.

Whyano sustained minor damage to the front fender and grill of his car. Iannucci's car had a damaged taillight.

No one was injured. Officers Peter Caro and William Shire investigated the accident.

Tears Down Fence
A car operated by Frank Roberts, RD 2, Langhorne, ran off the highway at Bristol road and Spruce avenue, Oakford, Saturday night at 11:45 and tore down a fence on the property of the Hungarian Club. Police said a wet road contributed to the mishap. There was no damage to Roberts' car.

Five minutes later, a car driven by Joseph Rieter, 26, 1248 Longshore avenue, Philadelphia, encountered heavy traffic coming out the Lincoln Drive-In Theater. A car operated by James Debow, 2340 Oxford street, Philadelphia, ran into the rear of Rieter's vehicle. Debow was arrested for operating his vehicle too fast for road conditions and for driving without an operator's license.

Police estimated combined damages at $250.

Tried to Pass
Early Saturday morning James

W. Bacham, 31, 5109 Green street, Philadelphia, was proceeding on Route 13 west of Route 413 when a car driven by Willie L. Brown, 37, of 1938 N. 13th street, Philadelphia, tried to pass.

At the same time a vehicle operated by William H. Clinkscales, 27, of 1820 Bucknell street, Philadelphia, going west on Route 13 came head on in the center lane causing Brown's car to ram into the rear of Bacham's auto. Brown's and Clinkscales' cars sideswiped each other.

Brown's car was virtually demolished according to police. Its drive shaft and rear axle were knocked off their anchoring points. Clinkscales' vehicle was damaged moderately. Officer Neil Hepler investigated.

Car Upsets
The wheel of a car being towed by a tow-truck broke yesterday afternoon at 3:30 causing it to upset on its right side. It carried the tow truck along with it.

Donald J. Stillely, 24, of 649 N. 15th street, Philadelphia, had driven his tow truck to Bristol to bring back the car, involved in a recent accident, for repairs.

Police said Stillely was not injured. His tow truck was damaged to the extent of $50.

At about the same time yesterday afternoon three cars were involved in a collision on Route 413 in the neighborhood of Rockdale Village.

A vehicle operated by Edwin Cyarneep, 27, 1900 N. 4th street, Philadelphia, stopped to make a turn while cars driven by Clarence Reach, 19, Church street, Glassboro, N. J., and Vincent Scheidler, 19, 4425 Consist lane, Philadelphia, failed to stop or slow down to permit the turn. All cars collided. Officer Robert Lawrence investigated.

Pedestrian Deaths Rise in County

A decrease of 32 in the number of motor vehicle traffic fatalities in Pennsylvania has been reported by the Bureau of Highway Safety. Bucks county, though, reported that there were seven more pedestrians killed here during June of 1952. Eighteen persons were killed in traffic deaths compared to nineteen for a year ago.

The 86 deaths during the month of June was the lowest number experienced in this state for any one month during the past eight years. Chester county led the 29 counties recording decreases during June, while Dauphin, Lebanon, Philadelphia, and Westmoreland counties headed the 18 counties registering increases.

Deaths on the Pennsylvania turnpike were up five over the three reported during June 1952.

Sergeant Fails

Bergmann replied, "that's a job for the Council."

Bergmann would not comment on the actual questions given Parto, but said that the test was "devised by the Commission, and was given both in oral and written form."

"The Civil Service Commission held a meeting before Mr. Parto was given the test," Bergmann said. "We made rules that gave due consideration to his past service as a sergeant on the police force."

Most of the "consideration," the secretary said, applied to a written test Parto took, but it was also applied in the oral test. "In spite of this," Bergmann said, "he did not meet the minimum qualifications for chief of police. After the test was over, Mr. Parto told the commission that it was a fair test. He said he felt nervous and could not sleep."

Would Not Remain
Bergmann said that Parto would not remain a sergeant on the force "because there was no vacancy created by the Council for that job."

The Commission was established last April in conjunction with a law which requires the setting up of such boards to handle police matters in any borough with three or more men on the force, according to Bergmann.

He said that all vacancies on the force would be filled through the Commission, and that present members of the force would take competitive examinations for their jobs August 14.

"Raw Deal"
Reached for comment at his home, Sgt. Parto said that he was given a "raw deal" on the examination.

"I was supposed to have gotten points for my tenure as sergeant on the force, and I never got them," Parto said. "And I never received consideration for the fact that I passed the oral test. They give you a big bulldip, and then let you down. I thought I was the new police chief, but I guess I'm not after all."

The day after the examination, the Commission, in a letter to Police Committee Chairman, Councilman John Lucisano, announced that "with all consideration of which the applicant is entitled by rules adopted by the Civil Service Commission, for this non-competitive examination," Parto did not receive a passing grade.

The letter was read to Council in a special meeting Wednesday night.

Parto confirmed the fact that he had requested an appeal hearing, and said that he thought it "no more than right" that the Commission "or someone" should have released the news at the time it happened.

"I would have released it right away," he said. "I can't see any reason for them holding back."

Main speaker of the opening session will be Dr. Richard Gerstell, state director of Civil Defense, who will report on the recent atomic tests in Nevada.

Elderly Man Hurt; Son Held in Jail

LOWER SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 10 — A 47-year-old son, William L. Dace, was committed to Bucks County Prison Saturday to await a hearing on charges by neighbors that he caused a disturbance resulting in injuries to his father, William H. Dace, 81.

The elder Dace, of Belmont and Dauphin road, Feasterville, was taken to Abington Hospital by the Trevese Heights Rescue Squad, called on for assistance by Lower Southampton Police Chief Edward Wunch.

Dace was treated for shock and leg bruises, hospital attendants said resulted from kicks.

Chief Wunch said neighbors claim Saturday's disturbance was only one of a series. He said the younger Dace was under the influence of liquor when he was arrested.

Wunch said he is making a complete investigation of the incident and that the younger Dace will be given a further hearing when he has completed his investigation.

Merchants Warned

move in this area as a result. They said they believed the thieves had also taken the official stamp from the Lawrenceville, N. J. post office.

The first stolen order, for $100, showed up and was cashed at the Morrisville post office only minutes before postal employees there were alerted about the Yardville money order thefts.

Warnings were broadcast throughout the Delaware Valley area, particularly to merchants in Philadelphia, where Chief Inspector Albert E. DuBois, of the criminal investigation division, instructed all police captains to be on the lookout for attempts to cash the stolen orders.

DuBois said the stolen order blanks carried serial numbers from 3-8603 2351 to 3-8603 2400.

Morrisville police said the cashed money order was presented by a man in his early 30s about 5 feet 9 inches tall with a light complexion.

MAINTAINING STRENGTH

Communists have been informed that the Korean truce agreement is accompanied by doubts of good faith on their part. It follows, therefore, that U. S. military strength will not be permitted to deteriorate as a safeguard against resumption of aggression. The high command underestimated red strength and designs at the end of World War II.

In the summer of 1945 the United States had the mightiest Army, Navy and Air Force in world history. It had defeated two powerful nations. No sooner was the fighting ended than destruction of the facilities which had made these victories possible was begun.

Demobilization of the Army was started, a great part of the naval fleet was put in mothballs and a great Air Force was cut down greatly. Some equipment was destroyed and some permitted to fall into the hands of Russia. Five years later a huge rearmament plan was again set in motion.

There are millions of trained Chinese under arms. Will they be demobilized to return to the ways of peace? Russian military strength, which was not cut back at the end of World War II, is at an all time peak. Not until Russia starts disarming can the world breathe freely again.

Columnist's Husband Wants To Buy A Dog

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 —(INS)— "If I were ten years younger, I'd buy myself a dog," the head of clan Robb said as he put down the evening newspaper. "Say a boxer with three pups."

"That isn't one dog, that's four," I said. "And, besides, you're the one who's always said that dogs shouldn't be forced to lead a city life."

"I am a man who can learn by example," Mr. R. began, "and when I went out to buy this paper just now I saw a splendid example of how to win friends and influence women."

"As I walked up sixth avenue toward the newsstand, a young fellow coming toward me was creating a kind of minor traffic jam."

"He was giving away ten dollar bills," I guessed.

"He wasn't giving away anything but his name, address and telephone number to swooning females," said the master of the house, "and collecting the same from them in his little black book. And in the nearest, most respectable manner in the world."

"He had thought up a dodge you can't beat. He was out walking a big, maternal boxer and three of the friskiest pups you ever saw, and you can't arrest a guy for that. Every woman in the street was 'Oh-h-h-ing' and Ah-h-h-ing' over those dogs."

"Just as the lad got abreast of me, two of the prettiest girls I ever saw threw themselves at his feet to pet the dogs. It was a lesson in propriety for Emily Post. The young man stopped so the girls could admire his dogs but he didn't try to speak to them. And the girls ignored him. They just talked to the pups, not to him."

"Their mothers should have warned them about talking to strange dogs," I said.

"Then one of the young ladies said to the other that she had always wanted a dog more than anything," Mr. R. continued, scolding the interruption. "That was the man's cue to say 'excuse me, Miss, but just by coincidence, I am looking for a good home for these pups. Would you be interested in having one when it is housebroken?'"

"Of course, the girl had to reply. She said she would be the happiest girl in the world to have a boxer pup, but she would have to consult with her mother first. So the young man, still polite and aloof, said if he only had her name, he would be glad to call and find out in another 24 hours is she really wanted the pup."

"Of course, they had to exchange names, addresses and phone numbers."

"About that time, I went across the street to get a package of cigarettes at Molly's delicatessen. A minute later who comes in to buy dog food but the young man with his kennel in tow. Anw you know that pretty girl who lives on the fifth floor of this apartment house?"

"Well, she was in Molly's too, and she began having hysterics over the pups. In two minutes, they were exchanging names, addresses and phone numbers, so he could call in 24 hours to find out if her father will let her have a pup. Can you beat it?"

"No," I said. "It's a better racket than all the lonely hearts clubs ever invented."

"That's amateur stuff," scoffed the head of clan Robb. "This lad is destined to go places, all of them interesting. Why, if I were ten years younger . . ."

"I'd buy a leash!" I said firmly.

A manufacturer is advertising a garden kit said to enable home growers to test soils and check the nutritional needs of plants.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — For demagogic brain washing, there is nothing to compare with the highly vocal defense presented on behalf of various Communist front organizations before the Subversive Activities Control Board.

Party liners fighting to keep these organizations from being listed as subversive have concentrated their abuse on two members of the Control Board.

Former Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) is target number one; number two is

LEWIS

Watson Miller, former Commissioner of Immigration.

Both men are killed in detecting Communist machinations, hence they are being smothered with charges of bias and prejudice bordering on slander.

Cain, while a member of the Senate, supported numerous legislative actions, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance, designed to stem Soviet conquest. In addition, he conferred with Spanish officials on the prospect of securing cooperation from that nation for allied military bases. He also advocated the admission of European displaced persons, subject to effective screening to keep subversives out of the country.

When Cain's name was considered by the Senate Judiciary Committee last April as a prospective member of the Subversive Control Board, the Communists and their mimics stayed in hiding. He was confirmed unanimously.

The same applied to Miller. As Commissioner of Immigration, Miller was subjected to countless lawsuits and restraining orders when he attempted to deport Soviet agents and Communists already in the country illegally. Nevertheless, the Reds made no protest when his name went before the Senate for confirmation as a board member.

The Communists apparently wanted both men on the Subversive Control Board, as foils in their attempts to wreck the hearings and deny the government the right to label Communist fronts for what they are.

The National Council of American Soviet Friendship, which through its attorneys denies it is a Communist front, attacked Cain on the grounds of prejudice because he supported Spain as a member of NATO, while the council opposed the use of Spanish bases.

In addition, Cain was charged with being a promoter of "enmity and war," for his support of NATO, while the council says it promoted peace between the U. S. and Russia. Of course, its idea of advocating peace seemed, to most of us, to be based on the theory that we should let Russia take over the world.

Cain, the council concluded, is "psychologically incapable" of judging whether the council is a Communist front.

Miller also was accused of prejudice. The American Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, also denying it is a Red front, accused him of illegal efforts to deport four Communist heroes from the U. S. The only one of importance was Gerhart Eisler, who later became Communist propaganda boss for East Berlin.

For some reason, in charging Miller with prejudice against Communists, the attorneys failed to mention that Soviet Agent Eisler should be ousted from the U. S. They accused Miller of "illegal" activities while Commissioner of Immigration—taking steps to kick Communist aliens out of the country—and said this proves he cannot view such organizations as the American Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born dispassionately.

The prize was saved for Cain, however, Abner Green, secretary of the committee, accused Cain of voting against the admission of Jewish persons when displaced persons legislation was before the U. S. Senate.

This is a form of anti-Semitism the Communists like to practice—accusing anti-Communists unjustly of being anti-Semitic, while they themselves cry false pity for the homeless and harassed Jews in Europe but offer not the slightest concrete hope of haven or refuge.

Cain asked Green what he was talking about, but did not receive a reply. He then said:

"Let the record show that under the act, for which the member here accused of racial prejudice voted, there were 127,886 persons admitted, of whom 33,494, or 26 per cent, were classified of the Jewish faith."

This might well be a matter of interest for an organization such as the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, which truly tries to oppose real anti-Semitism, as contrasted with the phony opposition of the Communists.

AA Program In Penna. Set For Sept. 1st

HARRISBURG — (INS) — The State Health Department is still uncertain today after four years what kind of program will be set up September 1 for care and rehabilitation of alcoholics.

"Nothing definite has been decided yet," reported secretary Russell R. Teague. "We are still discussing what the program will consist of."

Under a bill approved by the 1953 General Assembly, the Department will have $500,000 for the current biennium to establish a program.

Gov. John S. Fine has not yet signed the bill into law, but he is expected to do so since it was only at his prompting the Legislature appropriated the funds.

The program is three-fold: (1) to study the problem of alcoholism, (2) to treat and rehabilitate persons addicted to excessive use of alcoholic beverages and (3) to promote preventive and educational programs designed to eliminate alcoholism.

Under these broad terms, the enabling legislation provides for employment of competent personnel, use of needed hospital and clinical facilities and methods of committing alcoholics to state care.

"We don't know if we'll be set up to go by September 1," admitted Teague.

"We may begin the program at that time on a kind of experimental basis with a few cases, but it will be several months before we can really get going."

He pointed out that although the act is effective September 1 it passed the Legislature only in the final days of the session and still has not been made official by the Governor's signature.

Before the program can get underway, the Department must hire a medical director and other professional personnel trained in care of alcoholics and find hospital space in state institutions or new buildings or through contracts with private agencies.

The 10-man State Health Advisory Board will assist in working out details for the program.

In addition, courts must have time to learn the procedure through which all patients will be committed to the commonwealth for care.

To become eligible, a person must be addicted to alcohol to the point he is unable to care for himself, his family or property or has become a burden on the public.

He may be committed for rehabilitation through voluntary application, by petition of family or friends or in lieu of a sentence for any crime other than murder.

Treatment will be over a period of one year unless cured earlier. Costs will be paid on a per diem basis by the individual if he has the money or by the County in which he is a resident.

An agency for studying alcoholism was established in the Health Department in 1949 but was given no funds with which to operate. The 1951 Legislature refused Fine's request for $150,000.

The 1953 Legislature appropriated the $500,000 only after a stern reminder by the Governor that the commonwealth is morally obligated to render assistance to individuals harmed by liquor which the state sells on a monopoly basis and reaps $100,000,000 annually in revenue.

Dusk Dangerous State Police Warn Traveling Drivers

HARRISBURG — The half-light hours of dusk can fool a driver into thinking he sees more clearly than he does, State Police warned today.

"The fading light of early evening is deceptive and brings additional danger to drivers who relax their alertness," said Colonel C. M. Wilhelm, State Police Commissioner.

"Approaching cars alternately blend in and stand out from their backgrounds. The last rays of the sun leave some portions of the road well lighted and others in semi-darkness."

The Commissioner pointed out that Pennsylvania law requires that lights be used from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, and at any other time when there is not sufficient light to render clearly discernible persons and vehicles on the highway at a distance of 500 feet ahead.

Colonel Wilhelm also emphasized that driving without the required lights is extremely dangerous. Carelessness in replacing burned out bulbs makes the vehicle a hazard to traffic.

Failure to dim lights when approaching other cars was listed as another hazardous violation.

I believe the vitality of our democratic way of life rests upon the extent to which we strengthen local and state governments.—Sen. Butler, Maryland.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By-Passing The Boards

By FRANK R. KENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—Inability of the present Administration to make greater progress toward fulfillment of its promises for a balanced budget and reduced taxes has been attributed to the fact that the "mess" it inherited from the Truman Administration was very much worse than anyone suspected. Naturally, the left-wing Democratic propagandists have denounced this as an alibi.

KENT

Of course it is an alibi. But it happens to be a first-class, high-grade, unbreakable and unshakable alibi, which can be supported with figures and facts. The real reason the Treasury cannot lay down with confidence a firm chart of expenditures and receipts for the next fiscal year is because of the habit prevailing for the past few years of permitting the military establishment to make contractual obligations involving unexpended appropriations extending for years into the future. Neither President Eisenhower, Secretary Humphrey nor anyone else, had any idea the extent to which this practice had been carried until they began to check up on the real situation. Until then the Treasury experts had believed that the Boards of Contract Review had worked effectively.

Recently they have found out better. There are fourteen of these review boards covering the country. The idea was that every army, navy or air force contract must be approved by one of these boards before becoming effective. And such was the general procedure until after the election last year. About that time, realizing that a new administration was coming into power and spurred by the allegations of an ammunition shortage, it seemed unwise to some of the military men on the higher levels to be caught with large unexpended—though authorized—balances on their hands.

They then proceeded to bypass the review boards. Members of these boards point out that the law provides that this can legally be done in case of "emergency." It is admitted, too, that the "emergency" it left to the judgement of the military authorities. However, it is asserted, no such "emergency" existed as to justify the wholesale bypassing of the review boards that has occurred. In one instance contracts unapproved by one board exceed $300,000,000. Contracts for material and munitions upon which delivery cannot begin until the end of 1954 have been showing up at the Treasury, all duly signed and legally executed.

The Treasury has to find the money to meet these obligations. No one appears to know how many such contracts have been signed nor what the total obligation will be. All that is known is that it makes unstable any foundation for a balanced budget. Moreover, nothing very much can be done about it. No law has been violated. Nothing dishonest done—except that it is certainly a dirty trick to play on an administration which had not—and could not have had—any idea of the situation.

According to the Guaranty Trust Company's monthly review, the carryover of unexpended balances, including these contracts, amounts to more than $80,000,000,000 and is directly responsible for the loss by Congress of the control it formerly exercised over the budget. The assertion is made that current Federal deficits are largely due to this condition, and there seems no excuse for the continuation of so unsound a scheme.

The state of affairs with which the Treasury is now confronted emphasizes the need for action. So far as the Treasury is concerned, it has taken what action it could to prevent new bypassing of the review boards for the purpose of committing unexpended balances. Its difficulty is that it still does not know exactly how many contracts are still out or when they will turn up. While the bypassing has been stopped so far as Executive action can stop it, Congress itself must act to end the practice of appropriating ahead which has resulted in loss of congressional control, over the budget as well as an admitted sickness of our Federal finances. "This condition," the Guaranty Trust Bulletin says, "is the result of many years of wrongdoing." "The correction," it asserts, "may take time, but it can be accomplished if the will to accomplish it continues strong enough."

MAINTAINING STRENGTH
Communists have been informed that the Korean truce agreement is accompanied by doubts of good faith on their part. It follows, therefore, that U. S. military strength will not be permitted to deteriorate as a safeguard against resumption of aggression. The high command underestimated red strength and designs at the end of World War II.

In the summer of 1945 the United States had the mightiest Army, Navy and Air Force in world history. It had defeated two powerful nations. No sooner was the fighting ended than destruction of the facilities which had made these victories possible was begun.

Demobilization of the Army was started, a great part of the naval fleet was put in mothballs and a great Air Force was cut down greatly. Some equipment was destroyed and some permitted to fall into the hands of Russia. Five years later a huge rearmament plan was again set in motion.

There are millions of trained Chinese under arms. Will they be demobilized to return to the ways of peace? Russian military strength, which was not cut back at the end of World War II, is at an all time peak. Not until Russia starts disarming can the world breathe freely again.

Columnist's Husband Wants To Buy A Dog

By INEZ ROBB
NEW YORK, Aug. 10 — (INS)— "If I were ten years younger, I'd buy myself a dog," the head of clan Robb said as he put down the evening newspaper. "Say a boxer with three pups."
"That isn't one dog, that's four," I said. "And, besides, you're the one who's always said that dogs shouldn't be forced to lead a city life."
"I am a man who can learn by example," Mr. R. began, "and when I went out to buy this paper just now I saw a splendid example of how to win friends and influence women."
"As I walked up sixth avenue toward the newsstand, a young fellow coming toward me was creating a kind of minor traffic jam."
"He was giving away ten dollar bills?" I guessed.
"He wasn't giving away anything but his name, address and telephone number to swooning females," said the master of the house, "and collecting the same from them in his little black book. And in the neatest, most respectable manner in the world."
"He had thought up a dodge you can't beat. He was out walking a big, maternal boxer and three of the friskiest pups you ever saw, and you can't arrest a guy for that. Every woman in the street was 'Oh-h-h-hing' and Ah-h-h-hing' over those dogs."
"Just as the lad got abreast of me, two of the prettiest girls I ever saw threw themselves at his feet to pet the dogs. It was a lesson in propriety for Emily Post. The young man stopped so the girls could admire his dogs but he didn't try to speak to them. And the girls ignored him. They just talked to the pups, not to him."
"Their mothers should have warned them about talking to strange dogs," I said.
"Then one of the young ladies said to the other that she had always wanted a dog more than anything," Mr. R. continued, scorning the interruption. "That was the man's cue to say 'excuse me, Miss, but just by coincidence, I am looking for a good home for these pups. Would you be interested in having one when it is housebroken?'"

"Of course, the girl had to reply. She said she would be the happiest girl in the world to have a boxer pup, but she would have to consult with her mother first. So the young man, still polite and aloof, said if he only had her name, he would be glad to call and find out in another 24 hours if she really wanted the pup."
"Of course, they had to exchange names, addresses and phone numbers."
"About that time, I went across the street to get a package of cigarettes at Molly's delicatessen. A minute later who comes in to buy dog food but the young man with his kennel in tow. And you know that pretty girl who lives on the fifth floor of this apartment house?"
"Well, she was in Molly's too, and she began having hysterics over the pups. In two minutes, they were exchanging names, addresses and phone numbers, so he could call in 24 hours to find out if her father will let her have a pup. Can you beat it?"
"No," I said. "It's a better racket than all the lonely hearts clubs ever invented."
"That's amateur stuff!" scoffed the head of clan Robb. "This lad is destined to go places, all of them interesting. Why, if I were ten years younger..."
"I'd buy a leash!" I said firmly.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

by Fulton Lewis, Jr.
(Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — For demagogic brain washing, there is nothing to compare with the highly vocal defense presented on behalf of various Communist front organizations before the Subversive Activities Control Board.

Party liners fighting to keep these organizations from being listed as subversive have concentrated their abuse on two members of the Control Board.

Former Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) is target number one; number two is Watson Miller, former Commissioner of Immigration.

Both men are killed in detecting Communist activities. Hence they are being smothered with charges of bias and prejudice bordering on slander.

Cain, while a member of the Senate, supported numerous legislative actions, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance, designed to stem Soviet conquest. In addition, he conferred with Spanish officials on the prospect of securing cooperation from that nation for allied military bases. He also advocated the admission of European displaced persons, subject to effective screening to keep subversives out of the country.

When Cain's name was considered by the Senate Judiciary Committee last April as a prospective member of the Subversive Control Board, the Communists and their mimics stayed in hiding. He was confirmed unanimously.

The same applied to Miller. As Commissioner of Immigration, Miller was subjected to countless lawsuits and restraining orders when he attempted to deport Soviet agents and Communists already in the country illegally. Nevertheless, the Reds made no protest when his name went before the Senate for confirmation as a board member.

The Communists apparently wanted both men on the Subversive Control Board, as follows in their attempts to wreck the hearings and deny the government the right to label Communist fronts for what they are.

The National Council of American Soviet Friendship, which through its attorneys denies it is a Communist front, attacked Cain on the grounds of prejudice because he supported Spain as a member of

These bulletins are issued for the purpose of assisting those industries and communities which desire to participate in obtaining the maximum of defense work.

Sordani also said the 12 New Industries Bulletins listing 26 industries of manufacturers in regards to industrial sites and industrial buildings available for rental or sale were also distributed during this period to the above mentioned groups.

AA Program In Penna. Set For Sept. 1st

HARRISBURG — (INS) — The State Health Department is still uncertain today after four years what kind of program will be set up September 1 for care and rehabilitation of alcoholics.

"Nothing definite has been decided yet," reported secretary Russell R. Teague. "We are still discussing what the program will consist of."

Under a bill approved by the 1953 General Assembly, the Department will have $500,000 for the current biennium to establish a program.

Gov. John S. Fine has not yet signed the bill into law, but he is expected to do so since it was only at his prompting the Legislature appropriated the funds.

The program is three-fold: (1) to study the problem of alcoholism, (2) to treat and rehabilitate persons addicted to excessive use of alcoholic beverages and (3) to promote preventive and educational programs designed to eliminate alcoholism.

Under these broad terms, the enabling legislation provides for employment of competent personnel, use of needed hospital and clinical facilities and methods of committing alcoholics to state care.

"We don't know if we'll be set up to go by September 1," admitted Teague.

"We may begin the program at that time on a kind of experimental basis with a few cases, but it will be several months before we can really get going."

He pointed out that although the act is effective September 1 it passed the Legislature only in the final days of the session and still has not been made official by the Governor's signature.

Before the program can get underway, the Department must hire a medical director and other professional personnel trained in care of alcoholics and find hospital space in state institutions or new buildings or through contracts with private agencies.

The 10-man State Health Advisory Board will assist in working out details for the program.

In addition, courts must have time to learn the procedure through which all patients will be committed to the commonwealth for care.

To become eligible, a person must be addicted to alcohol to the point he is unable to care for himself, his family or property or has become a burden on the public.

He may be committed for rehabilitation through voluntary application, by petition of family or friends or in lieu of a sentence for any crime other than murder.

Treatment will be over a period of one year unless cured earlier. Costs will be paid on a per diem basis by the individual if he has the money or by the County in which he is a resident.

An agency for studying alcoholism was established in the Health Department in 1949 but was given no funds with which to operate. The 1951 Legislature refused Fine's request for $150,000.

The 1953 Legislature appropriated the $500,000 only after a stern reminder by the Governor that the commonwealth is morally obligated to render assistance to individuals harmed by liquor which the state sells on a monopoly basis and reaps $100,000,000 annually in revenue.

BUILT ON CHRIST

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." (1 Corinthians 3, 11).

The Christian religion stands or falls with Christ. Christianity is built on Christ.

Because Christ remained sinless, because He atoned for our sins on the cross, because He conquered Satan, overcame the world, and vanquished death, Christianity has a message of triumph for sinful men.

Man needed someone to champion his cause, to fight his battles, to conquer his foes, to bring him back into right relationship with the God he had sinned against. Jesus Christ filled that need.

At times people seem to forget that Christ is the first syllable of Christian and of Christianity, and that he is the beginning and end of the Christian religion and of our salvation. On Christ, the solid Rock, I stand; All other ground is sinking sand.

The music for half the score of revue will be composed by Don Walker, of near New Hope. Mr. Walker is a noted arranger, who did the scores for such recent Broadway hits as "Me and Juliet" and "Can Can."

Prepares Tunes
He is currently preparing tunes for "The Girl in Pink Tights," which was left uncompleted by the late Sigmund Romberg at the time of his death.

Three of the four heads of the four county dramatic groups that will provide the talent and other personnel for the revue, recently held a meeting at the home of John Osborn, Langhorne, who is head of the Langhorne Players.

Players Attend
Attending were Mrs. Robert Blahop of Churchville, president of the Southampton Players, and John DeSilver, Riegelsville, who heads the Palisades Players. Albert Powell of Levittown, who heads the Levittown Players, was unable to be present.

Mitchell C. Hodges, publicity director of the Chest, reported that most of the show material has been completed.

A sixth performance date has been added to the revue schedule. On Oct. 1, the revue will be seen in the Pennridge High School auditorium in Perkasie. This means there will be a total of six performances presented in five different communities.

Newlyweds Plan To Live at Broad Axe

NEWTOWN, Aug. 10 — On Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, Miss Elizabeth Lois Whitworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Whitworth, Centre avenue became the bride of Mr. Richard M. Bateman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bateman, Sr., Broad Axe, in Newtown Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. John E. Mertz, D. D., officiated at the double ring ceremony, with Miss Margaret Denithorne, Phoenixville, singing "Because", "Still As The Night" and "The Lord's Prayer". She was accompanied on the organ by Miss Joanne Noble, Warwick.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white nylon net over satin with Chantilly lace, fashioned with strapless bodice and Chantilly lace jacket with long sleeves. The bouffant skirt of net had inserts of Chantilly lace, and elbow length veil of French illusion was attached to a white velvet crown. She carried a hand bouquet of white roses centered with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Theodore Bateman, Jr., of Wayne, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of lavender silk organza over matching taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, off-shoulder neckline, cocktail length bouffant skirt. Mrs. Bateman wore a small crown of pastel summer blooms, and carried pastel flowers. Miss Marion Whitworth, Newtown, sister of the bride, and Miss Mary Lou Haines, Flourtown, were bridesmaids. Each wore a gown fashioned identical to that of the honor attendant with similar head-dresses and flowers. Miss Whitworth wearing apple green organza and Miss Haines, yellow.

Mr. Theodore Bateman, Jr., of Wayne, served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Mr. George Numbers, of Drexel Hill, and Mr. George Schall, of Harrisburg.

Mrs. Whitworth, the bride's mother, wore a gown of aqua silk, white accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds. Mrs. Bateman, mother of the bridegroom, chose a powder blue silk gown, beige accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

After a reception at Lavender Hall, the young couple left for Ocean City, Md. They will be at home at Broad Axe, after Sept. 1st. The bride is an alumna of Council Rock high school and is a senior at West Chester State Teachers College. The bridegroom, a graduate of Blue Bell high school, served with the U. S. Marine Corps, and is now associated with Southampton Nurseries as a landscape architect.

Overlap is important in an extension ladder. A 36-foot ladder should have an overlap of at least 3 feet, so its useable length is only 33 feet. A 40-foot ladder reaches a height of only 36 feet.

To Present a Pretty Picture, Avoid These Grooming Errors

Messy handbags—so many women carry them—are no beauty asset. Men merely conclude from the evidence that a gal's sloppy.

By HELEN FOLLETT

NO woman can afford to neglect a single detail of grooming. If hair is stringy, in need of washing and curling, it is no help to put on one's best frock and toy with make-up. Untidy hair is the first thing a man notices when he meets a woman, or at least so men say.

Slipshod-looking feet encased in shoes that could do with a shine or heels that need lifts are good-looks errors that are not to be excused either. A girl can find cute looking shoes that are chic and comfortable without breaking the beauty bank.

Make-up that is too obvious is usually due to hurried application. Some women never seem to learn how to make themselves a fresh, new face. The biggest mistake is placing rouge low. It gives the countenance a dragged-down look.

Tullytown Schools' New Official Former Intelligence Corpsman

John Linscott, Jr., took over his new position this week as supervisor of Tullytown borough's elementary schools, and he said he is now trying "to get acquainted with the area."

Linscott, although he was born in Kansas, moved to Maine at an early age, and it was there that he attended high school. Right after his graduation he entered Farmington Maine State Teachers College, from which he received his bachelor's degree.

Then for the next five years Uncle Sam ruled his Army life and he served in intelligence as an enlisted man and officer. Shortly after returning to civilian life, Linscott enrolled at the University of Connecticut.

Still later the University of Houston, in Texas, awarded him his master's degree, and he stayed there to work in his doctor's degree.

"Scotty", as he is called by his friends, spent four years in Texas where he was supervising principal at Cypress Fairbanks elementary school. Before acquiring the position in Tullytown he was principal at a school in Alpha, N. J., for a year.

Married to the former Aileen Byler, of Texas, the couple has three children — Karen, Sharon, and John, 3rd. The family has just returned from their cabin in Maine, where they spend each summer fishing and swimming.

They moved into their house at 15 Top Hill lane, Levittown, last Friday, and although most of their furniture won't arrive until next week, they all seem to take it in their stride. "Why, it's just like camping out," Linscott laughed.

The new supervisor is a member of the Masonic Lodge, the Lions Club, the National Association of School Administrators, the National Honor Society, and is a Kappa Delta Phi.

He now has over 130 semester hours in elementary education, and also a major in supervision and administration in elementary schools.

Public Asked To Study Meteors

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10 (INS) — A University of Pennsylvania professor invited residents of Pennsylvania and neighboring states today to become amateur astronomers and assist scientists in studying the annual Perseid meteor shower.

The celestial fireworks occur tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and Dr. Charles P. Olivier, president of the American Meteor Society, seeks observers to count the number of meteor flashes seen each hour during the three-night shower.

He asked all observers to mail reports to the Flower Observatory on West Chester Pike, Highland Park, Upper Darby. Dr. Olivier is seeking information on the number seen each hour and their brilliancy.

Perkasie Man In Dairy Course

STATE COLLEGE, Aug. 10 — Edward Ralph Haas, RD 3, Perkasie, is enrolled in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisor training short course at Pennsylvania State College.

The program, which will continue until Saturday, Aug. 19, provides training in testing milk for butterfat and in keeping records. Nineteen men and three women are taking the course.

Penna. Turnpike Drivers Warned To Heed Rules

An illustrated safety brochure issued to all motorists using the Pennsylvania Turnpike was lauded as a highly effective educational step by Keystone Automobile Club.

"This pamphlet," declared Edward P. Curran, Safety Director of the Club, "should help greatly in increasing the safety of all on the Turnpike . . . providing all drivers read it and follow its advice closely. Its message is cogent and forcefully presented."

The brochure is entitled "Your Safety On the Pennsylvania Turnpike Depends On You." In his welcome to all Turnpike users, Thomas J. Evans, chairman of the Turnpike Commission, points out that "This great super highway is regarded as near perfection as human minds and hands can make it, but no driver should get the idea it is accident-proof. No highway can be accident-free as long as human hands guide the vehicles that travel over it."

In its eight illustrated panels, the brochure advises:

1. Always obey officers and speed laws. They are for your safety.
  2. Never drive one-handed. Keep both hands on the wheel.
  3. Never drive on left except when passing. Keep to right.
  4. Never walk or hitch-hike along Turnpike.
  5. Never pass on right.
  6. Never park or stop on traveled portion of highway.
  7. Never drive on, park on, or cross medial (center) strip.
  8. Never make U Turns.
- The brochure further cautions motorists on driving habits and concludes with the procedure to be followed when emergency service is needed.

Strauss' Noted 'Die Fledermaus' Slated for Revival

Johann Strauss' famous and popular "Die Fledermaus" will have its third revival at St. John Terrell's Music Circus, Lambertville, N. J., when it opens for a week's engagement on Tuesday, Aug. 11.

First done in 1949 under the title of "Rosalinda," the Strauss operetta was repeated in 1951 under its present popular title of "Fledermaus." The 1951 production is considered by many to be one of the finest shows ever put on the arena stage atop Music Mountain.

The cast for the coming production has two of the leads who appeared in the previous one, Ralph Herbert in the role of Elmer and Eleanor Lutton as the lovely Rosalinda. Others in the superb cast are Earl William as Alfredo, Jo Sullivan as Adele the maid, Stephen Douglass as Dr. Falke, Robert Feyti as Prince Orlofsky, John Anderson as Froch the jailer and Rowan Tudor as Frank.

Maestro Sylvan Levin whose deep interest in the Strauss music was responsible for the current popularity of "Die Fledermaus" will direct the Music Circus orchestra. Choreographer Rex Cooper has devised special dances for his corps de ballet and will also dance with his group. James Hamilton has done the decor, Robert C. Jarvis did the staging.

Ralph Herbert appeared in the 1942 revival of "Rosalinda" on Broadway which ran for a total of 700 performances including its road tour. A native of Austria he was the leading baritone in the Vienna Opera before coming to the United States in 1941. Since then he has sung with the New York City Center Opera Company, The Opera National de Central America and the San Francisco Opera Company. He has been soloist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and guest soloist at Carnegie Hall. Recently he has been featured in many of the television operas over the National Broadcasting Company.

"Show Boat," with a cast headed by Evelyn Wychoff, Stephen Douglass, William C. Smith, Richard Wentworth, Helen Raymond, Mary Ann Niles and Jack Blair gives its final performance on Sunday, Aug. 9.

Health Department Joins Campaign On Food Information

HARRISBURG — The Nutrition Division of the Pennsylvania State Department of Health has joined forces with the American Dietetic Association in a nationwide program to combat misinformation about food, it was announced today by Mrs. Anna de Planter Bowes, Chief of the Nutrition Division.

During the past year, Mrs. Bowes said, each state nutritionist has given particular emphasis to disseminating correct information about food through as many channels as possible. A report of ways in which this has been done in Pennsylvania, Mrs. Bowes stated will be made at the next annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association in Los Angeles, Cal., in August.

For a period of years, the questions most frequently asked about food and health have been recorded by state nutritionists. Early in the current year these were pooled and analyzed. From this list an exhibit was designed which focused attention on the ten most popular questions. A leaflet entitled Who Knows Which Are Facts — Fallacies was prepared in the form of a check sheet so individuals could score themselves. The correct answers to the questions were also included.

The exhibit is designed for use at local, county, and state fairs. The leaflet is the basis of discussion at meetings where nutritionists are asked to present up-to-date facts on nutrition. A series of graphic food value charts is a part of the presentation. At a glance, the audience can see what are facts — or the truth, and what are fads or fallacies about common foods.

Women Motorists Confuse Statistics

CHICAGO — Are woman safer drivers than men?

Well, you can't prove it by the National Safety Council. In the 1953 edition of "Accident Facts," its statistical yearbook, the Council is forced to beg the issue because no one knows how many miles each sex drives.

The Council knows that eight out of 100 drivers involved in fatal accidents in 1952 were women. Drivers of the fairer sex figured in 12 out of 100 motor vehicle accidents of all types.

But there are not as many women drivers as men, and they drive a lot less. And since no one knows how much less, the argument must go on, and even the authoritative National Safety Council can't settle it.

Tullytown Schools' New Official Former Intelligence Corpsman

John Linscott, Jr., took over his new position this week as supervisor of Tullytown borough's elementary schools, and he said he is now trying "to get acquainted with the area."

Linscott, although he was born in Kansas, moved to Maine at an early age, and it was there that he attended high school. Right after his graduation he entered Farmington Maine State Teachers College, from which he received his bachelor's degree.

Then for the next five years Uncle Sam ruled his Army life and he served in intelligence as an enlisted man and officer. Shortly after returning to civilian life, Linscott enrolled at the University of Connecticut.

Still later the University of Houston, in Texas, awarded him his master's degree, and he stayed there to work in his doctor's degree.

"Scotty," as he is called by his friends, spent four years in Texas where he was supervising principal at Cypress Fairbanks elementary school. Before acquiring the position in Tullytown he was principal at a school in Alpha, N. J., for a year.

Married to the former Aileen Byler, of Texas, the couple has three children — Karen, Sharon, and John, 3rd. The family has just returned from their cabin in Maine, where they spend each summer fishing and swimming.

They moved into their house at 15 Top Hill lane, Levittown, last Friday, and although most of their furniture won't arrive until next week, they all seem to take it in their stride. "Why, it's just like camping out," Linscott laughed.

The new supervisor is a member of the Masonic Lodge, the Lions Club, the National Association of School Administrators, the National Honor Society, and is a Kappa Delta Phi.

He now has over 130 semester hours in elementary education, and also a major in supervision and administration in elementary schools.

Public Asked To Study Meteors

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10 (INS) — A University of Pennsylvania professor invited residents of Pennsylvania and neighboring states to become amateur astronomers and assist scientists in studying the annual Perseid meteor shower.

The celestial fireworks occur tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and Dr. Charles P. Olivier, president of the American Meteor Society, seeks observers to count the number of meteor flashes seen each hour during the three-night shower.

He asked all observers to mail reports to the Flower Observatory on West Chester Pike, Highland Park, Upper Darby. Dr. Olivier is seeking information on the number seen each hour and their brilliancy.

Perkasie Man In Dairy Course

STATE COLLEGE, Aug. 10 — Edward Ralph Haas, RD 3, Perkasie, is enrolled in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisor training short course at Pennsylvania State College.

The program, which will continue until Saturday, Aug. 19, provides training in testing milk for butterfat and in keeping records. Nineteen men and three women are taking the course.

Penna. Turnpike Drivers Warned To Heed Rules

An illustrated safety brochure issued to all motorists using the Pennsylvania Turnpike was lauded as a highly effective educational step by Keystone Automobile Club. "This pamphlet," declared Edward P. Curran, Safety Director of the Club, "should help greatly in increasing the safety of all on the Turnpike . . . providing all drivers read it and follow its advice closely. Its message is cogent and forcefully presented."

The brochure is entitled "Your Safety On the Pennsylvania Turnpike Depends On You." In his welcome to all Turnpike users, Thomas J. Evans, chairman of the Turnpike Commission, points out that "This great super highway is regarded as near perfection as human minds and hands can make it, but no driver should get the idea it is accident-proof. No highway can be accident-free as long as human hands guide the vehicles that travel over it."

In its eight illustrated panels, the brochure advises:

1. Always obey officers and speed laws. They are for your safety.
  2. Never drive one-handed. Keep both hands on the wheel.
  3. Never drive on left except when passing. Keep to right.
  4. Never walk or hitch-hike along Turnpike.
  5. Never pass on right.
  6. Never park or stop on traveled portion of highway.
  7. Never drive on, park on, or cross medial (center) strip.
  8. Never make U Turns.
- The brochure further cautions motorists on driving habits and concludes with the procedure to be followed when emergency service is needed.

Ralph Herbert appeared in the 1942 revival of "Rosolinda" on Broadway which ran for a total of 709 performances including its road tour. A native of Austria he was the leading baritone in the Vienna Opera before coming to the United States in 1941. Since then he has sung with the New York City Center Opera Company, The Opera National de Central America and the San Francisco Opera Company. He has been soloist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and guest soloist at Carnegie Hall. Recently he has been featured in many of the television operas over the National Broadcasting Company.

$200 from Budget

CHICAGO — Accidents — $200! Did you include that figure in your family budget last year? That was the average cost of accidents per family in 1952, according to the National Safety Council.

Health Department Joins Campaign On Food Information

HARRISBURG — The Nutrition Division of the Pennsylvania State Department of Health has joined forces with the American Dietetic Association in a nationwide program to combat misinformation about food. It was announced today by Mrs. Anna de Planter Bowes, Chief of the Nutrition Division.

During the past year, Mrs. Bowes said, each state nutritionist has given particular emphasis to disseminating correct information about food through as many channels as possible. A report of ways in which this has been done in Pennsylvania, Mrs. Bowes stated will be made at the next annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association in Los Angeles, Cal., in August.

For a period of years, the questions most frequently asked about food and health have been recorded by state nutritionists. Early in the current year these were pooled and analyzed. From this list an exhibit was designed which focused attention on the ten most popular questions. A leaflet entitled "Who Knows Which Are Facts — Fallacies" was prepared in the form of a check sheet so individuals could score themselves. The correct answers to the questions were also included.

The exhibit is designed for use at local, county, and state fairs. The leaflet is the basis of discussion at meetings where nutritionists are asked to present up-to-date facts on nutrition. A series of graphic food value charts is a part of the presentation. At a glance, the audience can see what are facts — or the truth, and what are fads or fallacies about common foods.

Women Motorists Confuse Statistics

CHICAGO — Are woman safer drivers than men?

Well, you can't prove it by the National Safety Council. In the 1953 edition of "Accident Facts," its statistical yearbook, the Council is forced to beg the issue because no one knows how many miles each sex drives.

The Council knows that eight out of 100 drivers involved in fatal accidents in 1952 were women. Drivers of the fairer sex figured in 12 out of 100 motor vehicle accidents of all types.

But there are not as many women drivers as men, and they drive a lot less. And since no one knows how much less, the argument must go on, and even the authoritative National Safety Council can't settle it.

Strauss' Noted 'Die Fledermaus' Slated for Revival

Johann Strauss' famous and popular "Die Fledermaus" will have its third revival at St. John Terrell's Music Circus, Lambertville, N. J., when it opens for a week's engagement on Tuesday, Aug. 11.

First done in 1949 under the title of "Rosolinda," the Strauss operetta was repeated in 1951 under its present popular title of "Fledermaus." The 1951 production is considered by many to be one of the finest shows ever put on the arena stage atop Music Mountain.

The cast for the coming production has two of the leads who appeared in the previous one, Ralph Herbert in the role of Einstein and Eleanor Lutton as the lovely Rosolinda. Others in the superb cast are Earl William as Alfredo, Jo Sullivan as Adele the maid, Stephen Douglas as Dr. Falke, Robert Feyt as Prince Orlofsky, John Anderson as Froch the jailer and Rowan Tudor as Frank.

Maestro Sylvan Levin whose deep interest in the Strauss music was responsible for the current popularity of "Die Fledermaus" will direct the Music Circus orchestra. Choreographer Rex Cooper has devised special dances for his corps de ballet and will also dance with his group. James Hamilton has done the decor, Robert C. Jarvis did the staging.

'Chuck Hunting Casualties Set Unenviable Record

According to Game Commission figures, 8 persons have already been killed and 12 wounded in Pennsylvania this summer through groundhog hunter gunfire.

The histories of these shootings continue to amaze officials accustomed to reading hunter casualty records. It seems the wraps are off this year. There appears to be no regard for the age or sex of the victims. Anyone is fair game for erring chuck hunters.

In 1952, six humans were killed "in mistake for woodchuck." That is one-fourth the total number of persons killed by hunter gunfire in the Keystone state in all of last year! Contrary to general opinion, the small and large game seasons are not the most dangerous periods for one to go afield. On the basis of number of hunters participating and man hours hunted a far greater percentage of gun casualties occur in summer woodchuck hunting than in the "regular" seasons.

Casualty records have increased with the recent year development of high velocity varmint rifles and the "off season" sport of woodchuck hunting by gun enthusiasts. Many of the victims are shot in the vital head and neck area, because in brush or high groundcover the bare head or brown head covering resembles a chuck. Records show, too, that neither field glasses nor a telescope on a rifle offers positive assurance against fatal error.

Experienced groundhog hunters know that movement, not color, is what causes a "pig" to scurry for cover. Even if the little marmot could distinguish color and the hunters would rather play safe at the loss of a little sport. The common chuck cannot be compared to the deer, bear or wild turkey in trophy value, or in value as food. Therefore excitability, greed or wish for recognition for shooting prowess, in hunting him, can largely be ruled out.

While many of the shootings can be laid to the irresponsibility or the criminal negligence of the hunter, most chuck hunters would have returned home unharmed had they but taken simple safety precautions. While there is no brief for the person who shoots another in mistake for a wild bird or animal, on the basis of case records this fact seems to indict the victim, to a degree, in almost every instance, the person injured or killed was not wearing at least a head covering of white or fluorescent material, something that contrasted with the summer background. For lack of such protection he, or she, was "mistaken for a woodchuck."

Surely, it is not too much trouble for a chuck hunter to tie a piece of white cloth over his head, or too expensive or bothersome to purchase and wear a light reflecting cap—not when his life may be at stake for failure to do so.

Food Plot Borders Aid to Wildlife

Game Protector Dean M. Lesnett, Sr., reports: "Late in June, while checking the sericea lespedeza border around a food plot on Game Lands 112, Huntingdon County, I walked right up to a yearling female deer as it lay sleeping in the morning heat. She jumped up and ran away."

"I continued to examine the border and found 31 places where deer and their fawns had bedded down in the lespedeza clover border, which is about 200 yards long and 15 feet wide. The lespedeza is about 32 inches high and very thick, thus affording heavy cover to conceal the deer as they sleep in daytime. Further proof that such food plot borders are not just decorations."

Protector Stalks Stalking Reynard

As Game Protector Elmer D. Simpson, Union City, checked his beaver traps, set to eliminate lamag near the Warren County line, he heard crows persistently calling their alarm cry.

Simpson said: "Taking a shotgun I slipped carefully up to their location. After watching closely for a few minutes I saw a large red fox stalking a woodchuck. I managed to get within about 100 feet of the animal before being discovered, and finished him with one round of number 2's."

"Just a few days earlier I stalked and killed a great-horned owl in the same manner."

SCORING KING

J. L. "Pete" Mauthe, president of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., still owns the Penn State football season scoring record — 119 points in 1912. His career total of 171 points also is a Penn State record.

Game Violations Totaled 5041

The tabulation of game law prosecutions and penalties brought during the Game Commission's fiscal year ending May 31, 1953, reveals a total of 5,041 prosecutions, for which $161,735.91 was collected in penalties.

This compares with a total of 4,645 prosecutions and $147,382 in penalties collected over the previous fiscal year. In other words, there were 396 more prosecutions, and $14,353.91 more was paid in fines last year than the year before.

Some Reptiles Game Predators

Raymond E. Holtzapfel, a game protector, tells here about the predacious activities of a little-recognized predator.

Says Holtzapfel: "During the hay-making season, Farmer Stoy Smith, R. D. 2, Middleburg, Snyder County, cut a large blacksnake in three pieces while cutting grass with a mower. Noticing lumps in the snake's body the man examined it and found seven rattlehead pheasant eggs inside. The nest the snake had robbed was a short distance away."

Softball Play May Resume

There is a possibility that the schedule of the Bristol Softball League will be resumed Wednesday evening. Games of last week were called off because of several industries having vacations.

Several managers have informed league officials that most of the players will be back and they will be ready for action by the middle of this week.

The games of the Bristol Industrial Softball League will not be resumed until next week.
